Class Poem

Four long years we've had to strive To gain the goal of twenty-five. We are here all filled with glee. Dear C. H. S., we're leaving thee.

The time has come when we must part, And grief it brings to every heart; Our foundations for life have been laid, With our earnest efforts and teachers' aid.

Free from care in the wide world we go, Facing sorrow or joy—we do not know. We have to say "Adieu" and leave, But to C. H. S. we want to cleave.

Good-bye to Faculty so good and true, And to dear Cary High the same to you; Fare thee well to all once more, As we go out the High School door.

ELIZABETH SORRELL, Poetess.

History of The Class of '25

THE best and most vital history of any person or thing is never given to the world. So must it be with the Class of 1925.

Some of us have come all the way together through our four years of High School endeavor; others have joined with us in our class activities, though some fell by the wayside and, as in the parable of the Sower, failed to develop into the ripened grain. But we are justly proud of our goodly number, and today feel well repaid for the efforts of the past years.

In our daily lives we should be climbing toward some longed-for goal. If life is worth living at all, success is worth climbing for, even when climbing is over the most rugged rocks that may leave the hands and feet mangled and bleeding.

In our Freshman year the rocks ahead looked rugged and steep. Gradually we were schooled to the ascent, like the mountaineer in his climb, and were not afraid to step boldly forward, determined to scale all heights, so that we might at last stand on the mountain peak of success.

The influence upon our lives of every victory we gain cannot be over-estimated, and what we acquire in self-control, in persistence, in earnestness, and in all those sterling qualities that make the true man and woman, is worth every effort.

As Sophomores and Juniors with our eyes on the goal ahead, we climbed and paid but little attention to the few rocks encountered in the ascent. Well-informed guides had picked out the smoothest places for our feet, and pointed out the heights above so enthusiastically that it was only a pleasure to go forward. Here we journeyed up the mountain of Chemistry, and the weather was bad at times, the clouds dark and threatening, but the sun always came from behind the clouds and we pressed forward. We found steps cut up the side of the rocks of History and Algebra; also other landmarks pointing out the right path, showing us how to proceed, and so we pressed forward and proudly began our career as Seniors.

As we look back proudly at the work we have accomplished in the last four years at C. H. S., we are glad now that the work was sometimes hard and worthy of our best efforts; we are glad that we persevered in the face of all that seemed sometimes discouraging. We are placing our aim high, remembering that we can never reach beyond the point of our highest aim, but that success is the birth-right of every human soul. True greatness is also every person's birthright, and is within the reach of all who have the desire, the ambition, and the energy to work for it. Work without a definite aim is energy utterly wasted.

We realize what wonderful advantages we have been enjoying the past four years. We realize, too, how we have often failed to appreciate them and improve our opportunities. It was not for lack of warning that we disregarded the offerings of the passing hours; it was simply our own lack of a conception of its importance.

All the years of our High School life our energies have been, consciously or unconsciously, directed toward the hour of graduation. From our earliest days we have looked upon this day as the culmination of our ambition, the end of our aspirations, the realization of our ideals. To this end we have studied, worked, and planned; to this end we have dreamed great dreams, and seen great visions after the manner of students since the beginning of all study. Now the hour to which we have so long looked forward is in sight. If our work has been well done, this time is an hour of unalloyed triumph; if our work has been slighted, the end must naturally be tinged with some regret when we recall misspent hours and misdirected energies. Whatever our work has been, we may be sure that in all things the "end crowns the work."

But, strange to say, now that we have at last reached the goal of our youth's ambition, we find that it was not, afer all, the end of all things, that it has for so many years seemed to us, but merely a stepping-stone to larger, broader, fuller lives, the threshold of another and greater existence. We have not finished our course at all, but are merely to begin a new one.

ELIZABETH BATTS, Historian.

Last Will and Testament

STATE OF NORTH CAROLINA COUNTY OF WAKE CITY OF CARY

CARY HIGH SCHOOL

We, the class of 1925 of Cary High School, having indecisive minds and irregular bodies, realizing we are nearing the end, and are soon to leave the hills of Cary, being possessed of certain real and imaginary effects and possessions of which we wish to dispose, do hereby declare this document to be our lawful will and testament.

ITEM 1

To Professor Dry, we do will our sincere love and devotion.

ITEM 2

To our mothers and fathers, we will our fondest love, and deepest appreciation, for their untiring efforts that have made it possible for us to attend this institution.

ITEM 3

To the town of Cary, we leave our highest appreciation for the support she has given the class of '25.

ITEM 4

1. To the Junior class:

We leave the exclusive right for them to publish the next CHSITE.

2. To the class of 1927:

Junior privileges, hoping the burden will not prove too heavy.

3. To the underclassmen:

The hope of being Seniors some day.

ITEM 5

1. To Mr. Roller:

- Λ bunch of boys that will observe study hour, and that will get up in time for breakfast.
- 2. To Miss Cobb:
 - A Dramatic Club that will come to practice without a "formal invitation," and also an English Class that will study in advance for themselves.

3. To Messrs. Raper and Meekins:

- A bunch of clodhoppers that do not think hair grows on chickens, and who will pay attention while said teachers are explaining the difference between a stalk cutter and a radio.
- 4. To Miss Nichols:
 - A French class that will learn all the irregular verbs, and in addition bring up a nice cross-word puzzle every day.

5. To Mrs. Dry:

We bequeath our fondest love and gratitude for the good "eats" we have had during our stay here.

Twenty-eight

6. To Mr. Dalton:

We leave a vote of thanks for the excellent work in his department, and especially his valuable service in the boys' dormitory.

7. To Misses McCraw and York:

A Home Economics class that can wash dishes, scrub floors and paint chairs.

8. To Miss Pasmore:

An Algebra II class that will not skip classes.

9. To Mrs. Daniel:

A History IV class that will read as much as one book for outside reading every day, and put two-thirds of said work in notebook.

10. To Miss Liverman:

A special highway from Raleigh to Cary, so that automobiles will not be in her way while walking to and fro.

11. To Miss Ellis:

A nice, portable Victrola, so that her students can keep time while marching.

12. To Misses Shaw and Lindsay:

A Glee Club that can sing without a "club."

ITEM 6

- 1. James Satterwhite's complete beauty line is to go to Jesse Freeman.
- 2. Violet Cornell's music ability is to go to Nell Waldo.
- 3. Bill Harris is to receive Gilbert Fonville's "line."
- 4. Cat Jones's cuteness is to be handed to her heiress, Clellie Jones.
- 5. Newman Knott's great strength is to go to James Bashaw.
- 6. Rosa Pleasants leaves her ability in athletics to Vivian Shaw.
- 7. George Allen wishes to leave his "good looks" to Wallace Shearon.
- 8. Elizabeth Green's excellence in French II will go to Gertrude Straughan.
- 9. Willie Dry will receive Daniel Williams's bashfulness.
- 10. Marguerite Thomas leaves her tedious appetite to Jack Jones.
- 11. David Jones's back seat on spelling will go to Rufus Herring.
- 12. Judd Daniel will receive Cameron Howard's "Latin pony."
- 13. Elizabeth Wilkinson will receive Grace Hunt's dignity.
- 14. Mabel Hunt's ability as a good society worker goes to Alice Separk.

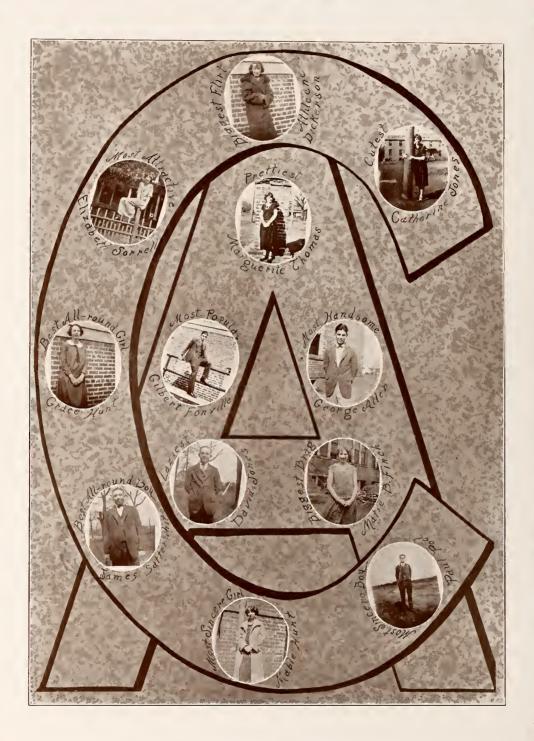

ITEM 7

As executors of this last will and testament, we name our trusted successors, the Juniors, to carry out each clause contained. And we hereby declare any previous will made by us null and void.

In witness whereof, we, the class of 1925, place our seal and signature on this, the twenty-fourth day of April, in the year of our Lord nineteen hundred and twenty-five.

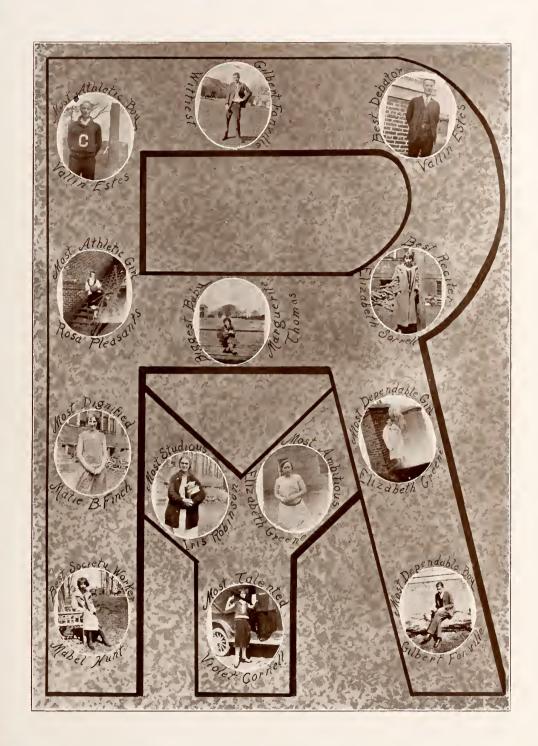

Class of 1925, Paul Poole, Lawyer.

Class Prophecy

So this is the entrance to Hades. Well, I never expected to be here, but now I believe I will enter and see what I can find. Where is Pluto?

Now the guide leads me by old Cerberus, the three-headed dog who guards the entrance, and we come into a subterranean passage. Shadowy spirits glide here and there, and we come out of the passage and lo! we are in the throne room, where Pluto and his queen, Proserpina, sit in state. Gold is everywhere. The walls are covered with it and it is stored away in great chests and sacks. Near the throne sit the three Judges of Hades.

We pass on and come to the Fates. Clotho spins the thread of life and intermingles the bright and dark lines. Lachesis twists it and Atropos cuts it where she pleases. Now we stop and watch them at their work.

"I am from the town of Cary and a member of the Senior Class," I said. "May I stay near and learn the future of my classmates?" They nod their assent, and what do you suppose I see?

First, George Allen appears as captain of the fastest steamship, Carolina, named in memory of the delightful school days spent in North Carolina. And he is well satisfied, for has not the President of the United States just returned on his ship from a trip to Europe?

Ina Atkins is head nurse at Mary Elizabeth hospital, and one can see that she is a very efficient nurse by the smiles on the patients' lips as she passes.

Elizabeth Batts is proprietress of the Paris Hat Shop at Greensboro, N. C.

I see Florence studying violin at the Louisville Conservatory of Music, and later as violinist at Oxford College.

James Batts appears working at an instrument in a large room, and after closer examination, I find that it is his latest electrical invention.

Next there appears a road, and on a large billboard I see the advertisement, "Coming soon, Barnum & Bailey's Circus. Everybody come and see Famie Bowers, the tight rope walker."

Naomi Blalock is a kindergarten teacher in a fashionable part of Washington, D. C.

Beulah Davis is married and helps her husband operate their poultry farm in Rhamkatte. Gradually the chickens disappear and all becomes dim.

Then a faint, shadowy figure appears. Lo! It comes nearer and I behold Vallin Estes, editor of the New York Times. Now another shadow is seen. The mist falls away and there stands his wife, formerly Elizabeth Sorrell, for is not her shadow always seen near his?

And where do you think Mattie Belle Finch is? She is a very famous movie actress at Hollywood, and all her dreams of being a missionary to China are forgotten.

Now the scene changes to Raleigh, N. C., and I see Gilbert Fonville working up till he is president of the Commercial National Bank.

Jane Greene has become interested in training ants. She has an aere of ground used exclusively for their home and has taught them to do many interesting stunts.

In the High School at Goldsboro, N. C., is Immogene Holleman as teacher of Chemistry. She is very happy because her marriage has just been announced for the following June, the year 1932.

Graee Hunt is Society Editor of the News and Observer, and just now she is all smiles, for she has just received the news that Mrs. C. M. Morris, formerly Athleene Diekerson, is the proud mother of twin daughters.

Cameron Howard is first seen studying law at Carolina, and then, after much success as a lawyer, he becomes United States Senator from North Carolina.

Mabel Hunt is an artist. She has studied in Europe, and before she is old I see her winning much fame.

While other members of the class are working in dusty, noisy cities, David Jones is enjoying himself at his beautiful country home on his pecan farm.

Everything becomes cloudy again, and as the sky clears up I see Catherine Jones giving a recital in the City Auditorium at Raleigh. I look more closely and notice that Violet Cornell is her accompanist. They have been on a tour of the United States and have now returned to their native State for a rest.

Thelma Jones appears to be teaching in different schools, and finally she becomes Supervisor of Public Schools in Wake County.

Vera Jones, Myrtie Prince, and Mary Smith are to follow in the footsteps of other teachers, by teaching a few years and then settling down to a happy married life.

Alas! (or so the men think) Watie Jones, the noted suffragette, is seen making a campaign speech for Mabel Wood, who is running for Governor of Ohio.

Now there appears a shady stream in Eastern North Carolina, and some one is approaching in the distance. As he comes nearer I see more clearly and recognize Newman Knott, the champion fisherman, who fishes for hours at a time, only getting an oceasional nibble.

Raymond Morgan is seen on his farm in the San Joaquin Valley, California, where he grows raisins.

Nettie Myrick is destined to become the old maid of the class, but she will accomplish a great deal of good. At least three generations will rise up and call her blessed because she was the first to direct their footsteps into the paths of knowledge.

At N. C. C. W., I see Rosa Pleasants as teacher of Physical Training.

And now the Fates reveal a doctor's office. Instruments of torture are all about. In an instant Dr. Poole comes in and jerks out the tooth of—now I see more clearly it is Iris Robinson, who owns a candy kitchen two blocks away.

Thirty-three

Having decided that a beauty parlor is not quite in his line, James Satterwhite is coach of athletics at Harvard.

Now I can hardly see, for the Lower World was not made for mortals, but the vision becomes cleared and I see Marguerite Thomas as stenographer to Ex-Governor Morrison, who has returned to the practice of law.

Evelyn Tillman is teacher of Home Economics at Bahama High School.

Viola Tingen is seen teaching in the mountainous section of Virginia, where she is doing much good for the ignorant mountaineers.

A man comes rushing up. I look more closely and recognize Daniel Williams, who is now a physician and is hurrying to the bedside of a patient.

Now I see several large buildings. As the vision becomes more clear, I see that it is an orphanage, and soon the superintendent appears. It is Ray Woodall, who has established a home for fatherless children so that their mothers may work and not have to depend upon mothers' pensions.

A large office building appears to me. Luna Yates, an architect noted for her colonial house plans, is at a large desk.

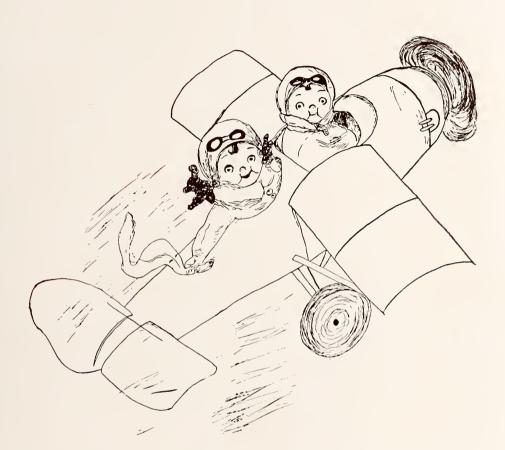

By now I have grown very tired, and as three days have nearly passed since I came into the Lower Regions, I thank the three sisters for my glimpse into the future, and the guide once more conducts me to the exit. I am very delighted to have learned the future of my classmates, but now that I am on firm land once more, I prefer this to the inner regions.

DEPARTMENTS

Class in Agriculture

INSTRUCTORS: MR. MEEKINS AND MR. RAPER

We're still growing! In addition to the spacious department in the Walter Hines Page Building, with good equipment, we are discarding our old shop building and are to have a larger and more up-to-date one in the Dr. J. M. Templeton Building.

Agriculture at Cary High school means more than just a course offered for credit; it means that future workers in "the world's greatest industry" will be the better enabled to serve mankind with a more select production and even distribution of the vital necessities of life.

There are courses offered to meet the needs of rural life in this community; there is a successful effort being made to reach the farmers and to help them solve their problems; and while doing these things this department joins each department of the school in helping to build a greater citizenship.

Home Economics Class

INSTRUCTORS: MISS YORK AND MISS McCraw

The Home Economics course is organized to cover two years' work, and is designed for the eighth and ninth grade students. The first year is devoted to Food, Textiles and Clothing; the second year to Dietetics, Textiles and Clothing, Home Nursing, House Planning and Interior Decoration.

Music Department

INSTRUCTORS: MISS ELIZABETH LINDSAY, MRS. RAY VEAL

For the past three years the Music Department has been under the able direction of Miss Elizabeth Lindsay. This year she is assisted by Mrs. Ray Veal. During this time the department has made rapid strides toward a higher standard of piano playing. Rev. C. H. Norris offers annually a gold medal for the most improvement during the year. The first night of commencement is given exclusively to the Music Department, which presents a program rendered by the students. The department numbers approximately fifty students.

INSTRUCTOR: MRS. DANIEL

This is one of the interesting elective courses offered at Cary High School, and an enthusiastic class of boys and girls have devoted a part of their time this year to the study of typewriting. The results speak for themselves in the work produced by the pupils individually.

The importance of skill in the operation of the typewriter, as well as the educational values developed in the learning process, is now receiving greater consideration in our school systems than ever before, and in fulfilling these aims the department feels justified for its existence.

The touch system, now universally recognized as the most efficient method of operating the keyboard, is used exclusively as a basis of work, and the high standards set in the text, "New Rational Typewriting," are carefully observed.

The Teacher Training Class

In 1922 North Carolina decided to follow the lead of other States and add Teacher-training as a department in some of her high schools. Four departments were established that year and four more were form in 1923. In 1924 five additional ones were added, making a total of thirteen departments in the State.

Superintendent A. T. Allen and Mrs. T. E. Johnston, from their knowledge of the needs of teachers in the elementary rural schools, worked out a course of study. Its purpose was to give one year of intensive training in teaching to studeuts who have graduated from high school.

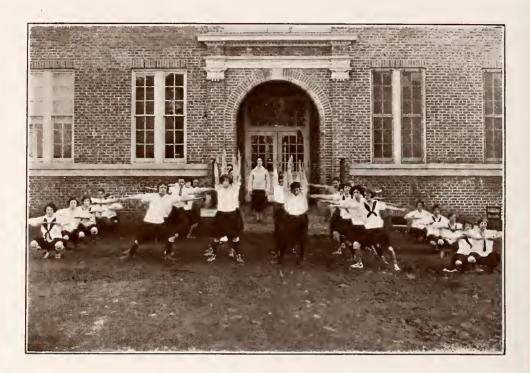

One of the thirteen departments of Teacher-training was established at Cary in 1922. It is one of the best equipped in the State with about a thousand dollars worth of equipment. A splendid library of professional books and other materials of instruction are provided for the student teachers. They prepare their work under the very best conditions.

In all three years, thirty girls have been very successful in securing good positions.

A Class in Physical Training

INSTRUCTOR: MISS RUTH ELLIS

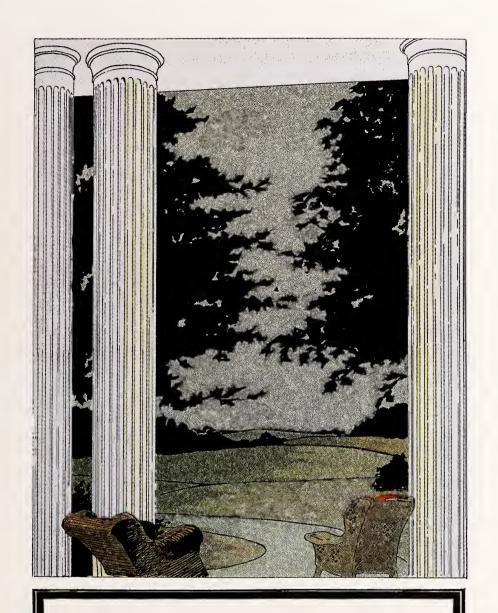

Believing that a sound body is essential to a sound mind, Cary High School provides for the physical training of both elementary and high school students. Regular classes are scheduled. These classes furnish all forms of physical exercise needed for the all-round development of the body, such as formal free-hand calisthenics, drills with hand apparatus, marching, running, jumping, tumbling, folk dancing, and mass games. All students take an active part in and are interested in this work.

A gymnastic exhibition will be given by the Physical Director at the dedication of the new twelve thousand dollar gymnasium, which is now under construction. This building will provide a large indoor basketball court as well as ample room for classes in physical training.

This phase of work was begun last year and, under the direction this year of Miss Ruth Ellis, has become an important part of the curriculum.

The meetings and discussions, together with the splendid motion pictures shown, have created a greater interest in science than was formerly shown.

The henefits derived from our cluh have been almost equal to those of the classroom, for we have kept in touch with new inventions and latest scientific discoveries in Chemistry and Biology, through the science journals which are discussed in cluh meetings.

These things we did not always have time to discuss in class. The result is that we have acquired a love and taste for science; we want to know what man or woman has made the latest discovery and what it is, and of what benefit it may be to mankind.

The Boys' Glee Club for the year 1924-25 has been a most enjoyable and valuable one to both members and directors. At the close of the year of 1924 we regretted very much losing Miss Molly Matheson, our most able director. With the coming of the new year, Miss Dorothy Shaw became our director. Miss Shaw has proven her ability as a director and we have enjoyed our work under her direction. We have made several public appearances at various times during the year, which have proven very beneficial to us.

Football Squad

At the opening of the school term prospects for football were poor, for the lack of experienced players, there being only one lettered man to report for practice. But by the faithful efforts of Coach Bagwell and players there has been a strong team developed before the end of the season, making a strong bid for the State honors and establishing a new record for Cary in games won.

Girls' Basketball Team

Girls' basketball team has been for the past two years one of the outstanding athletic organizations in school. They turn their opponents down with a one-sided defeat. Bad weather delayed both the building of the gymnasium and outdoor practice. By this handicap the girls have fallen down considerably the past year. As the lack of an indoor court will not be the drawback any more, we expect the girls to surpass all former records next year.

Seventy-two

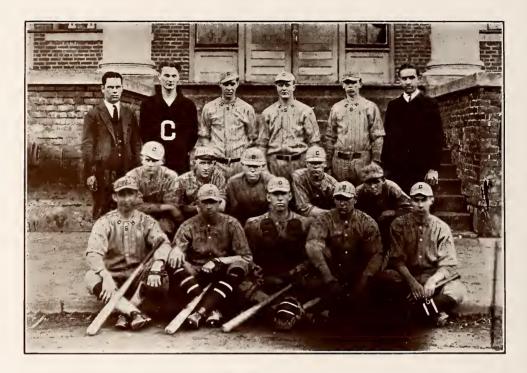

Front Row: Satterwhite (Guard), Shearon (Guard), Estes (Captain, Forward), Bagwell (Center), Daniel (Forward).

Second Row: Harris (Guard), Dry (Guard), Poole (Forward), Ellington (Forward), Third Row: Bagwell (Coach), Dalton (Director).

Basketball Squad

The boys' basketball team did not make the showing in match games equal to the material put out for the team at the beginning of the season. Some of the men were put out of the championship games on account of the State rules; but with only two regular men the team fought their opponents in the first championship contest to within one point of victory.

Seventy-three

Promising Candidates for Baseball

The baseball season has just begun, and the boys are working hard to have a winning team this year. Unfortunately, all of the old players of last year's team finished, with the exception of Satterwhite, Knott, Freeman, and Poole; but from the looks of the candidates that have been chosen, we are sure there are some that can fill the places of those who have finished. If hard work and determination count for anything, Cary will have another winning team that will come up to the standard of the teams of '23 and '24, which did not lose a game.

Seventy-four

Track

Since track is a form of exercise in which everybody may participate, it is becoming one of the major sports at Cary High School. Every one has an opportunity to make his letter in running, jumping, hurdling, pole vaulting, or in throwing the discus, javelin or shot.

A schedule is now being arranged for a field day on which the different classes will contest. This will be a preliminary to the State High School track meet, which will be held in Chapel Hill on April 10, and to the Wake County Commencement, which will be held in Raleigh on April 11.

Both boys and girls show interest in this form of sport and they expect, by constant and persevering training, to have a winning team this year.
